Learning to Say "Satoraljaujhely": finding a place in a Hungarian Jewish family Lynn Saul

This collection of poetry, short stories, memoir, family photographs, and contemporary photographs reflects 200 years of Hungarian Jewish history, from the early 19th century until today. Author Lynn Saul searches for the meaning of her ancestors' lives and tries to find her own place in what she discovers. The men are farmers, merchants, gamblers--and one is the billiards champion of Hungary. The women react to their circumstances and strike out on their own. Historical events in this book include the short-lived 1848 Hungarian revolution, the 1882-83 Tiszaeszlár blood libel trial, the effects of the Trianon treaty after WW I, the Holocaust, and transition of contemporary Hungary out of Communism and into the global era.
