The Miracle of Life: Hell on Earth Nigel Shindler, Max Shindler

“Hell on Earth”, answers the question; Why did the Tower fall? Many things people believe are good are the opposite. Opposing such things as sexism, racism, and discrimination, and supporting, equality, is considered good by the common man. The truth is the contrary, such terms are used to homogenize society, which promotes consumerism by making people ignorant because they fail to judge, and discern, resulting in them becoming attached to inanimate, rather than animate, objects; to materials instead of spirit; as a consequence, the Tower can no longer be held together, and falls. A miracle, I would say, is something that can be proven to have occurred, but the reason why is not understood, furthermore, it is perceived that it will never be understood. The wars, strife, and suffering, throughout history happened not because man wasn't given the means to decipher events, but because man failed to use knowledge wisely. He clouds his vision, so the obvious becomes murky, and what is straight appears crooked. Ignorance develops the same way as all other forms of sinful behavior; people create their own ceilings; barriers; shoe boxes, to live in, and refuse to accept anything that doesn't fit into their prefabricated world. Life isn't a mystery; whether there is hell or heaven on Earth is man's choice; if he's wise, he'll make sure he always stays on the right path.
